

1
2
3
4
5
6 IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
7 FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

8 RONALD EVANS TAYLOR, ) No. C 06-2981 MMC (PR)
9 Petitioner, )
10 v. )
11 ROBERT L. AYERS, JR., Warden, ) ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND 12 Respondent. ) DENYING IN PART 13 _____ ) RESPONDENT'S MOTION TO 14 ) STRIKE PETITIONER'S EXHIBITS;
15 ) DENYING PETITIONER'S MOTION
16 ) FOR DISCOVERY AND 17 ) EVIDENTIARY HEARING
18 ) (Docket Nos. 20, 21 & 25)

19 On May 3, 2006, petitioner, a California prisoner incarcerated at San Quentin State
20 Prison and proceeding pro se, filed the above-titled petition for a writ of habeas corpus
21 pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254, challenging a decision by the California Board of Prison
22 Hearings (“Board”) to deny him parole. On May 8, 2008, respondent filed an answer to the 23 petition; on September 5, 2008, petitioner filed a traverse.

24 Respondent has filed a motion to strike two exhibits submitted by petitioner in support
25 of the petition, on the ground petitioner did not file such exhibits with his state habeas
26 petitions. First, respondent moves to strike petitioner’s Exhibit B, a letter written, in July
27 1999, by Richard Goodman to Robert Presley, Secretary of the “Youth and Adult 28 Correctional Agency” (“Goodman Letter”). (Pet. Ex. B.)<sup>1</sup> In said letter, Goodman sets forth what he refers to as the results of his “study of the activities and costs of the Board of Prison Terms.” (Id.) In the instant petition, petitioner relies on Goodman’s conclusion that the Board makes its decisions to deny parole before a prisoner’s parole hearing has commenced.

---

<sup>1</sup>Goodman is identified by petitioner as a “politician.” (Pet. at 8a.)

1 (Pet. at 8a & Ex. B.) Second, respondent moves to strike petitioner's Exhibit C, a declaration
2 by Ed Payton ("Payton Declaration"), a life-term prisoner who has been incarcerated for
3 thirty-three years. In his declaration, Payton states that the Board denied petitioner parole
4 after only two or three minutes of deliberation, and that he "had never seen deliberations after 5 a lifer hearing[] end so fast." (Pet. Ex. C.)

6 In opposition to respondent's motion, petitioner notes that respondent's Exhibit 1 to 7 the answer is a copy of the state habeas petition that petitioner filed in the superior court, and
8 argues such petition includes copies of the above-referenced exhibits. In reply, respondent
9 concedes that the Payton Declaration was filed with petitioner's state habeas petition, but 10 argues there is no evidence the Goodman Letter was ever filed in state court.

11 A district court may grant a habeas corpus petition on the basis of a claim that was 12 adjudicated on the merits in state court only if the state court's adjudication of the claim:
13 "(1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of,
14 clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or 15 (2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in 16 light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding." 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d).
17 Whether the state court's decision was unreasonable must be assessed in light of the record
18 the state court had before it. Holland v. Jackson, 542 U.S. 649, 652-53 (2004) (per curiam).

19 The Court has reviewed the copy of petitioner's state habeas petition submitted by 20 respondent in support of the answer to the instant petition. Although, as respondent
21 acknowledges, the Payton Declaration was filed with the superior court petition, there is no
22 evidence to support petitioner's assertion that the Goodman Letter was part of the state court
23 record. Accordingly, respondent's motion to strike petitioner's Exhibit B is hereby 24 GRANTED and respondent's motion to strike petitioner's Exhibit C is hereby DENIED.

25 Petitioner has filed a motion seeking leave to obtain discovery from respondent and 26 for an evidentiary hearing with respect thereto. Specifically, petitioner seeks to support his 27 argument that the Board is "predisposed to find petitioner unsuitable" by a showing that the 28 Board denies parole to every prisoner at the prisoner's initial parole eligibility hearing;

1 petitioner seeks an order requiring respondent to provide the names of all prisoners who, in
2 the past thirty years, received a parole date at their initial parole hearing. Respondent objects
3 to such request on the ground it is vague and unduly burdensome, and because such records
4 were not before the state courts when they ruled on petitioner's claims. In response,
5 petitioner asserts the superior court denied petitioner's claims at an early stage of the 6 proceedings, and, consequently, that he should be allowed to supplement the record with any 7 discovery he obtains herein.

8 A habeas petitioner, unlike the usual civil litigant in federal court, is not entitled to 9 discovery as a matter of ordinary course. See Bracy v. Gramley, 520 U.S. 899, 904 (1997).
10 Rather, Rule 6(a) of the Rules Governing Habeas Corpus Cases Under Section 2254 provides 11 that a “party shall be entitled to invoke the processes of discovery available under the Federal
12 Rules of Civil Procedure if, and to the extent that, the judge in the exercise of his discretion
13 and for good cause shown grants leave to do so, but not otherwise.” Before deciding whether 14 a petitioner is entitled to discovery under Rule 6(a), the district court must first identify the 15 essential elements of the underlying claim, and must then determine whether the petitioner
16 has shown “good cause” for appropriate discovery to prove his claim. See Bracy, 520 U.S. at 17 904. Good cause for discovery under Rule 6(a) is shown “where specific allegations before 18 the court show reason to believe that the petitioner may, if the facts are fully developed, be 19 able to demonstrate that he is . . . entitled to relief . . . .” Id. at 908-09 (quotation and citation 20 omitted).

21 Assuming, arguendo, petitioner is not precluded from seeking such discovery for the 22 first time in federal court, the Court finds that, at this juncture of the proceedings, good cause
23 does not exist to allow petitioner the requested discovery. Although a prisoner is entitled to 24 have his release date considered by a parole board that is free from bias or prejudice,
25 O'Bremski v. Maas, 915 F.2d 418, 422 (9th Cir. 1990), in order to show that the Board, in 26 petitioner's case, had a predisposition to deny parole, petitioner must present evidence that is 27 more than speculative, see Morris v. Mendoza-Powers, No. 07-CV-0375 H(PCL), 2008 WL
28 4825927, at *4-5 (S.D. Cal. Nov. 5, 2008). Statistical data that the Board has never, as

1 petitioner maintains, granted parole at other prisoners' initial eligibility hearings does not
2 serve to establish that the Board automatically denied parole to those prisoners, or to
3 petitioner, or that the Board otherwise improperly made its determination, as parole may have 4 been properly denied after the Board's individualized assessment of each of those cases. See
5 Mosby v. Solis, 243 Fed. Appx. 246, 248 (9th Cir. 2007) (holding statistical denial rate
6 insufficient to establish blanket policy to deny parole); see also Cosio v. Kane, No. C 05-
7 1966 CRB (PR), 2007 WL 518599, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 12, 2007) (holding reliance on 8 statistical data of high percentage of parole denials provides no proof of Board's systematic 9 bias against parole where prisoner received individualized assessment of parole suitability);
10 Morris, 2008 WL 4825927 at *4-5 (holding petitioner failed to demonstrate predetermined 11 outcome of parole hearing where Board provided "detailed rationale" for decision).

12 Here, the discovery petitioner seeks would prove neither that the Board was 13 predisposed to deny parole in petitioner's case nor that the Board lacked "some evidence" to 14 support its decision in petitioner's case. See Sass v. California Bd. of Prison Terms, 461
15 F.3d 1123, 1129 (9th Cir. 2006) (holding Board's decision deprives prisoner of due process if 16 it is not supported by "some evidence" in the record).

17 Accordingly, petitioner's request for discovery and for an evidentiary hearing is 18 hereby DENIED.

19 This order terminates Docket Nos. 20, 21 and 25.

20 IT IS SO ORDERED.

21 DATED: December 16, 2008

MAXINE M. CHESNEY
United States District Judge

22
23
24
25
26
27
28